INDICATION FOR BROWN.

The juvenile court commission has completely exonerated Judge Brown from all the charges against him and the judge will doubtless continue to hold his position for an indefinite time, regardless of the clamor that was raised against him. The action of the commission will be displeasing to certain of our contemporaries and to some people who have formed an opinion of Judge Brown from the matter they have read about him in these contemporaries. The Herald holds no brief for the defense of Judge Brown, but it believes he has been shamefully maligned.

That his course could not have been regarded by the court commission as very erroneous is evidenced by the commission's report. At least two members of that body, Mayor Thompson and Chief of Police Sheets, would probably not object to seeing Judge Brown supplanted by a good "American." That they joined with City School Superintendent Christensen in exonerating him is the strongest sort of testimony to Judge Brown's worth.

It may be freely admitted that Judge Brown made mistakes in the Knox case; it may be that his language and his actions were unnecessarily rough. But a man who has done as much good for the youth of this community, boys and girls, as has Judge Brown, should not, in all fairness, be hastily condemned. For one error he should not be pilloried. If the advice of some of our contemporaries had been followed, if Judge Brown had been summarily ousted by impeachment or other proceedings, the loss would not have been his.

The little salary, $1,000 a year, does not mean everything to him. He is in the work because he believes that in it he can accomplish the greatest amount of good. And the good he has done so far outweighs anything bad that the bad may be said to be a negligible quantity. The Herald congratulates the court commission upon its decision and expresses the hope that Judge Brown will remain where he is for a long time to come.

JUDGMENT RENDERED.

So far as the judgment of the public is concerned the Roosevelt-Tillman-Bailey incident is closed. Roosevelt's last effort to discredit the men with whom he broke faith after soliciting their aid, was characteristically indirect. He, or some one for him, procured publication in the Chicago Tribune and New York Tribune of a story to the effect that Bailey distrusted Tillman and that Bailey, not the president, was responsible for the failure to proceed on the lines of the alliance sought by Roosevelt.

Senator Bailey's bitter denunciation of the story and its authors was a sufficient answer. He said the tale was a deliberate, unqualified, malicious lie, and the description fitted exactly the circumstances under which the report was circulated. None would believe it for a moment who knew the relations between Bailey and Tillman, and it needed no disclaimer from either of those senators. It has served, however, to fix the responsibility on the White House and to add the final touch to an almost incredible record of bad faith, mendacity and unblushing treachery in the executive office.

It is a foregone conclusion that the Republican senate will proceed to frame the rate bill to suit Senator Aldrich, who is once more the president's bosom friend and captor. But the end is not yet; the day of reckoning is to come and it will bring with it such retribution for Roosevelt and the Republican party as the American people are accustomed to mete out to men in high place who betray them.

THE "AMERICAN" DEFICIT.

The "American" party organ, as might have been expected, charges the shortage in the city's finances to the Morris Democratic administration. It talks grandiloquently of grand jury investigations, as it did during the municipal campaign, and it would have the taxpayers believe the falling off in revenue since January 1 is due to the stoppage of open gambling.

None of this foolishness has anything more to do with the question than it has to do with the Sunday opening of Councilman Mulvey's saloon, or the $75,000 plaster conduit gift to Pat Moran, or the sure-thing gambling games that are run on the quiet. The one point on which there can be no dispute is that the city is short in its general fund, so short that an increase in the tax levy to the maximum allowed will still leave the "American" administration unable to meet its running expenses out of the taxes. In spite of this fact, recognized by all the "American" officials from the mayor down, the mayor and his council majority have increased the salaries, added to the number of city employees, raised the cost of administration in every department and acted as though they had a big surplus at their command. They have known the condition of their treasury, and they are preparing now to increase the rate of taxation to the legal limit, and yet they go on piling up expense after expense.

If "Americans" like that, the taxpayers who foot the bill do not.

SINCLAIR TO ARMOUR.

Upton Sinclair, writer of "The Jungle," a story in which is made the most vicious attack on the meat trust that has yet been published, has challenged J. Ogden Armour, the reputed head of the trust, to proceed against him for criminal libel. If Mr. Sinclair did not tell the truth in his book he is guilty of the grossest kind of criminal libel; if he did tell the truth then conditions at some of the packing houses under Mr. Armour's control are in sore need of revision.

Sinclair charges that the packing houses are most insanitary, that spoiled meat is ground into sausages, that meat that is condemned by the government is packed in cans or sold to the poor people of Chicago. He says explicitly that Mr. Armour is responsible for thousands of deaths in the United States every year. And he politely asks Mr. Armour to give him an opportunity to prove the truth of his assertions. Mr. Armour is invited to institute criminal libel proceedings at once.

One of the friends of the meat trust has said that Mr. Armour cannot afford to pay any attention to Sinclair on the ground that he has not time to spend on every man who attacks him and his business. That is true as regards some attacks. This, however, is an onslaught that is calculated to work a tremendous injury to the packing house business; it is calculated to cost the trust hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in trade. If Mr. Armour is not guilty as charged it would seem that he owes it to himself to prosecute Sinclair.

The head of the meat packing industry can hardly afford to ignore his accuser. That is, always provided Sinclair is not telling the truth. It would certainly be a great blow to Mr. Armour if, in a court proceeding, Mr. Sinclair should prove his case.

Even if it were true, and it is not true, that the last Democratic city administration was a failure, would that cause you to forgive the "Americans" for recklessly squandering your good money? Is that a sufficient justification for their course?

A Chicago paper talks of 200 men and 100 teams being put to work on a project as if it were a great thing to employ that many men and horses on one piece of work. Shaw, out here in the west we'd use that many on a rush chicken coop job.

Some people say "Uncle Joe" Cannon is too old to be president. As long, however, as we have so many other things to worry about we'll try not to trouble about "Uncle Joe." He hasn't any chance to be president, anyway.

The Herald said a few days ago that there would be some desperate lying in an attempt to explain the financial snarl into which the "Americans" have gotten the city. Well, they are at it in great shape.

If the race for the congressional nomination is between Parley Christensen and Mr. Howell, the Republicans will be pardoned if they fail to take any interest in their convention.

Maxim Gor'ky is pessimistic about the duma. He doesn't think that it will accomplish anything. Maxim doubtless thinks the assembly might work wonders if he were only in it.

Eki Hiohl, charge d'affaires of the Japanese mission, has returned to Japan. That name certainly does sound like a bad case of staying late at the club.

It won't be long now before Messrs. Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone will be breaking into the front page again. Their trials begin early next month.

A report comes from West Virginia that Senator Elkins may not be re-elected. Wouldn't that make Mr. Roosevelt just ill?

Theodore Roosevelt has even ceased to be interesting. There never was a greater political explosion in all our history.

Professional traders are said to be holding up prices in Wall street. The lambs must be standing out from under.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

Farming would be very easy if it didn't rain too much or too little. Unless a man gets excited in an argument his wife is afraid he is getting the worst of it. It's the man who thinks women can't make a fool of him that isn't worth their while to do it. SOCIETY

The members of the Reviewers' club held their annual luncheon yesterday at the University club. The large round table was decorated in the club colors, green and gold, the deep gold of the wild marigolds being used. A circle of the flowers radiated from the center to near the plates and outside of that a handsome lace cover was laid. Three tall vases of crystal held bouquets of the flowers and the smaller tables were massed with them. Souvenirs of the year's study in the form of traveling bags and suit cases with the Italian cities marked were at each place. Those at the board were Mrs. W. A. Wedgwood, Mrs. C. D. Moore, Mrs. J. C.
